Term 1 Week 2

English

This week we started our SPAG lessons, this week we were learning all about vowels and consonants. Maybe you could ask your child in their spellings how many vowels and consonants are in each word. After that we started our first English text which is 'The Day the Crayons Quit' by Drew Daywalt. First, we looked at the front cover and predicted why the crayons might've quit. Then when we read the text we then wrote what we thought our favourite crayon would've done once they quit drawing!

Math

In Math this week we have been continuing our learning of Place Value. We have been learning about one more than any given number to 100. We had to read the questions carefully to ensure an understanding of the questions. For example. $_ _$ is one more than 13, which is one more than $_ _$. Following on from this, we were recapping our Knowledge of number lines and working out where numbers would go between 0-100. We then investigated problems such as 'If my start number is 62 and my end number is 72, what would be the 4th number?'

Science

We started our Science learning on Humans this week. First we looked at the meaning of survive and what humans and all living things need to survive. We discussed the difference between need and want. We then compared a non-living object such as a robot to our favourite animals and discussed similarities and differences.

History

Our learning based on The Great Fire of London continued. We started learning about what life would've been like in the 16th Century. We discussed different jobs people would've had then, such as a scullery maid, chimney-sweep, an apothecary. We then compared those jobs to jobs that people have now. We focused on the role of the fire fighters, looked at the equipment they had to put out fires and compared it to the present.
